

Want a career in quilting?

Long-Arm Quilter: Sandy Beintema Lindal

I first met Sandy when I started quilting. She jumped right in to help when I started Quilts at the Creek, was my right-hand woman during our quiltTalk days, and has quilted many/ most of my quilts. A true friend and collaborator.

After graduating in Fashion Design at Sheridan College, Sandy found work in the local garment industry. She took a break when her children were young, and later looked for new job opportunities. She found the local garment industry had changed irrevocably, and started looking at other avenues. She had always been drawn to fabrics, and her quilting career began! She has organized sew-alongs, fabric swaps and more. This led to her lecturing on her real passion, scrappy quilts, using ALL your fabrics in fun and creative ways. When she bought a Longarm machine for quilting, she jumped in and quickly built a quilting business with a large following of loyal customers.

Sandy has boundless energy, and when she isn't quilting customers quilts, she is designing her own quilts, using every bit of fabric she owns. She teaches workshops, and does live and ZOOM presentations too. Sandy has recently moved into designing Block of the Month Programs, again with the aim of helping quilters use their stash. These have been a huge hit with participating guilds .. when you look at the quilt Heartfelt below, her newest BOM project, you can see why! Her Heartfelt quilt is now available in her Etsy shop.
